

From the office of Mr Quentin Raffles, Watson Games

-----

Q) Can the player join the auction if he/she is in the jail?

A) No.

Q) If a player owns all of the properties with the same color, and he mortgaged one of it, will the rent of them still be doubled?

A) Yes, but remember that no rent is payable when a player lands on a mortgaged property.

Q) If a player has to go to jail, can they pay £50 immediately and move to “just visiting”? Or must they wait until the next turn? (Because £50 is an extremely small amount in whole game, not a big penalty for player) Just want to confirm.

A) Yes. The £50 may be paid immediately.

Q) We know that we can set the start player as who got the highest score of dice at the beginning, but how about the order of second, third and other players? Clock-wise or second/third highest score of dice? Or is it also in the spirit of the original game?

A) You may choose any reasonable strategy as you see fit.

Q) Just want to confirm one more thing, if a player has £100, and their properties are worth £300, but they have to pay £2000 to another player (deep blue with hotel), does it mean the player sells all of their properties and pays £400 to the other player and is removed from the game? And the remaining £1600 will not be given to that player, right?

A) That is correct. The player pays as much as possible, and then retires from the game. Any remaining debt is written off.

Quentin Raffles, Watson Games